When there's text with # in it, it can be seen when scrolling around in the split window. It looks like this: # helo world^# I don't like having # in my code. Is there any way to prevent that? A: You can customize your vimrc to always view files as though # didn't exist. " Always toggled with :set all/append? autocmd ViewPost * set foldnoprnt autocmd ViewPre * set foldnoprnt (some packages will overwrite the autocmds before actually running ViewPost or ViewPre, but this will enable them without messing up any other use of View or fold. Also note that foldnoprnt is a global option.) For more on setting options for the view mode, see :help vim-view-modeline. xjH7+d/yJqf//e/f//r8//T//o2//+//6//2//j3//u///+///h//
