■ Why Choose An Online Game? For individuals, the establishment of an internet connection at the time when they are first looking for games or when a game is first played is not necessarily easy. Thus, most people cannot participate in a game at the beginning of its development stage or in the planning stage. Moreover, online games can provide a large number of players, so the number of players may increase according to the development of the game. ■ Why Did Arc System Works Develop A Fantasy MMO? Arc System Works, with its extensive experience creating online games, focuses on creating a game in which players can interact with other players. Furthermore, the game places an importance on the aspect of participation. Arc System Works has created many action games, but a fantasy game in which warriors fight with swords was never the company's primary goal. However, when the RPG genre was first introduced in the 1980s and the character ability-enhancing aspects of the genre were first featured, Arc System Works saw the potential of the genre and decided to develop a fantasy game. The game is set in the Lands Between, and the fantasy elements are very distinctive. When the game was developed, Arc System Works began to focus on these fantasy elements in order to broaden the game's potential appeal. ■ The Features Of An Asynchronous Virtual Environment The game uses a text-based interface and has a visual rule that is enforced through action descriptions. In the game, the players show their intentions, and the developers judge them through this information. In this judgment, each decision represents a "bid" for the players' attention. Because of this judging and bidding, the information displayed on the screen changes quickly as the situation changes, and the game's game speed changes accordingly. However, since the advent of the internet, this mode is used very rarely. The developers believe that players can feel more immersed if they can interact with their virtual world. Therefore, in the game, you can communicate with your party members with text. ■ Players Are Taught To Communicate With Each Other With Simple Words The words used in text do not directly represent objects, locations, or distances. They have different meanings when you use them in different scenarios, so you must be careful not to misunderstand their meanings. Thus, players are taught to communicate with simple words and cooperate with each other with a simple but natural method. By using words to obtain the information you need, your party will progress smoothly. ■ An Ong
