Album Design Advanced for Photoshop - Screenshots:Lipid-Protein Vesicles from a Single Polyelectrolyte Network. The self-assembly of anionic polyelectrolytes (PE) and cationic lipids (CL) in aqueous media yields stable protein-lipid vesicles (PLV) with a protein shell decorated with a CL monolayer. By employing the self-assembly of two oppositely charged polyelectrolytes, we have investigated whether a single PE network can be used to assemble PLV in a single step. We have found that the assembly of PE and CL is not simply the result of mixing two oppositely charged poly
